Being an Apprentice

Redkit and Shadowkit rolled around in the clearing, playing. Shadowkit pinned his sister down, but Redkit rolled over, unbalancing him. She jumped on his back, slithering her neck around to bite his neck softly then jerked her head, making him fall.

"Redkit, Shadowkit! Stop it this instant! You can't look like you rolled through mud then walked backwards through a thorn bush before your apprentice ceremony!" Their mother, Dewflower, purred. She wrapped her tail around Shadowkit and licked his fur clean.

Redkit purred. "Haha, Shadowkit!" She teased her brother.

"Now it's your turn," Dewflower meowed, grabbing Redkit by her scruff, licking all the dirt off of her. Redkit squirmed a little, but it was doing no justice so she sat still. She glanced at the apprentices' den and saw her best friend, Honeypaw, exit. Honeypaw wants to be a medecine cat apprentice, but Silverpaw already is. It's not hard to guess that Spotshade is close to joining StarClan, but she won't admit it. Silverpaw said he would make Honeypaw his apprentice one day.

"Hey, Ms. Future Apprentice," Honeypaw joked. Honeypaw had only been an apprentice for a moon, along with Sunpaw and Rainpaw.

Redkit shook her fur when her mother finished grooming her, and stood by Honeypaw.

"Shut up, flea-brain!" Redkit teased Honeypaw.

Honeypaw purred and asked, "I wonder who your mentor will be!"

"Me too,"

"Cats of ThunderClan, gather beneath the HighRock for a Clan meeting!" Redkit heard Mudstar call out.

"Good luck!" Honeypaw called after her. Redkit sat by her brother and looked up at Mudstar, who was flanked by Suntuft, Cedarfur, and Spotstorm.

Redkit didn't know a lot about Spotstorm, but he was a loyal warrior for sure, and Cedarfur was told to be deputy if Suntuft died or when Suntuft became leader.

"I call you all here to apprentice Redkit and Shadowkit," Mudstar yowled, breaking Redkit free from her thoughts. "Shadowkit," Her brother approached Mudstar. "Do you promise to uphold the warrior code and learn all you can?"

"I do,"

"Then I give you your apprentice name, Shadowpaw, and your mentor will be Cedarfur." Shadowpaw dipped his head and licked his new mentors shoulder.

"Redkit," Redkit approached Mudstar. "Do you promise to up hold the warrior code and learn all you can?"

"I do,"

"Then I give you your apprentice name, Redpaw, and your mentor, Spotstorm." Redpaw licked her new mentors shoulder. The Clan broke up and went their own ways.

"I will take you, Shadowpaw, Cedarfur, and Honeypaw on a patrol later. Go look around." Spotstorm told her.

"Thank you," Redpaw said, dipping her head. She heard him purr in response.

"Congradualtions!" She turned to see Honeypaw approach her.

"Thank you," Redpaw said.

"I'll show you where--" Honeypaw got cut off when Rainpaw slithered in by Redpaw, saying,

"I'll show you where your nest is," He purred.

"Or you can cut me off to moon over Redpaw!" Honeypaw said, her whiskers twitching.

QUICK MAP OF THE CAMP!

The camp has tall walls surrounding it and the entrance is through a massive pile of fallen rocks. When you enter, you walk down something that's stair-like and is surrouned by brambles and thorns. You then walk into the camp. It's a clearing with the High Rock on the far right that has grown out of that wall with a small hole for the leaders den. At the foot of it is the medicine den. Then the wall to the left of that is a flat wall with a ledge leading den to den. Starting from the bottom is the warriors den, then the apprentices' den, then the Elders den. In the medicine den in the very back then hang a left, is the nursery. In the medicine den is a small hole in the ground with water trickling above it into a little pool so water is right in the camp. All the way away from the High Rock and Den Wall is Warm-Rocks, where cats can bask.

----------Back to the story----------

Redpaw followed Rainpaw up the ledge and to the apprentices' den. He led her all the way to the back to five soft nests made from moss and feathers.

"It will be me, you, Honeypaw, Shadowpaw, and Sunpaw. Is that okay?" He asked.

"Yes. Thank you," Redpaw licked his chin then left the den.

The thoughts of Rainpaw swarmed her head like bees.

Rainpaw

This is Rainpaw.

Discovery of the Forest

Redpaw, Honeypaw, Shadowpaw, Spotfur, and Cedarfur rounded up by warm-rocks.

"Hey, can I come?" Redpaw heard Rainpaw ask Spotstorm.

"I suppose you can. Redpaw will need as many apprentices as she can to teach her things," he replied.

Redpaw growled. "I'm not a kit!"

"I know," Spotstorm purred. They showed Redpaw around the forest then did battle training that day.

First Battle

Six moons had passed since Redpaw's apprenticeship and she was already claimed as the Clans best fighter and hunter. Some cats questioned it because she was only an apprentice.

Redpaw, Rainpaw, Cedarfur, Waterwing, and Suntuft went on a patrol near the ShadowClan border. Four cats were by the border, staring at the SkyClan patrol.

"SkyClan think they're so great, Whiskerpaw." A grey tabby she-cat growled.

"That's right, Silverstripe," another growled. He was a dark blue-grey.

"I wish I could give them a taste of their own medecine, Midnightfang!" A black she-cat growled, lashing out a forepaw.

"Easy, Nightfoot," Midnightfang said.

"We aren't deaf, you mange-ridden, poor excuse for a cat!" Waterwing suddenly burst out, growling.

"Ooh, so scared!" Silverstripe taunted.

Suntuft's fur fluffed up but he spoke calmly. "We aren't looking for trouble. We are only on a patrol, as you should be,"

"You don't tell us what to do!" Midnightfang spat. "You th--" He got cut off when about a dozen rogues appeared.

"Well, well, what do we have here?" A tabby Brown tom sneered. He was huge, and he looked like the leader.

"I think we should teach them a lesson, Sair." A black she-cat remarked. "Clan cats think they own the forest so no others can't walk where they please!"

"You cats don't know the code of honor!" Suntuft spat.

"Don't you even!" Sair growled and launched himself at Suntuft, claws unsheathed. They were outnumbered. Badly.

"R-Rainpaw!" Suntuft huffed under Sair's weight. "We need more warriors! Redpaw! Go to RiverClan and ask for help!"

"Haha! No need! Our Rage are attacking all!" Sair triumphly yowled. Rainpaw had already dashed away and ThunderClan cats came bursting through the bushes, Rainpaw along. Redpaw ran to Rainpaw and Honeypaw.

"Let's go gather the other Clans here!" With that, Redpaw, Honeypaw, and Rainpaw ran to RiverClan. When they reached the border, the three apprentices heard yowls of pain and battle.

Redpaw heard something and whipped around to see a dark brown tom behind them.

"You are on the wrong territory at the wrong time," he growled, swiping at Rainpaw. The grey tabby hit a rock head-first and he lay still. Redpaw ran by him.

"Rainpaw," she whispered. He didn't stir and his breathing was barely audible. "Rainpaw!" She wailed. Thunder and lightning cracked above and rain began to pour. Tears filled up in Redpaws eyes at the thought of her best friend being dead.

Hey guys! Sorry for the late update! I hope you like it!
